One of the advocacies of the association is to enhance the professional welfare of its members and to promote continuing professional education. The Philippine Association of Academic/Research Librarians. Inc. (PAARL) conducted its annual National Summer Conference themed as "Transcending Roles of Information Professionals: Going Beyond Concepts, Exceeding Expectations" in De Luxe Hotel, Capt. Vicente Roa Street, Cagayan De Oro City on April 22 to 24, 2015. The conference focused on three main objectives: 1) provide a deep understanding on the new and unconventional concepts in librarianship as results of continuously changing needs in academic and research environments; 2) introduce and foster emerging roles of librarians with 21st century skills in the areas of academic research, information and digital literacy, and information technology; and 3) present several options of transcended roles of information professionals to keep astride with the new concepts in librarianship and to exceed traditional expectations. In order to achieve the conference objectives series of topics were presented and discussed by notable and authoritative resource speakers and these were the following:

"Librarians as practitionerresearchers: advancing scholarship by building a culture of research" was presented by Dr. Allan D. B. De Guzman, Program Coordinator,...

PAARL's National Summer Conference...

PHILE The PHILE

Research Center on Culture Education and Social Issues of University of Santo Tomas. He said that 21st Century Librarian must have the following skills on:

a.) project management; b.) library services evaluation; c.) assessment of the needs of stakeholders; d.) how to translate traditional library services to online medium; e.) appraisal and ability to compare technologies; and f.) selling ideas and library services.

He also discussed the topic entitled "Librarians as digital curators: leading the way towards cyberscholarship". He mentioned that for years librarian was the portal to information, now the computer is the portal. Librarians need to find ways to help people discriminate between the sources of information and find the best ways to search. As quoted from Brian Hawkins, "commonly discussed solution to these problems is to move to an electronic model where information access – rather than ownership – is defining characteristics of a quality library.

The topic entitled "Librarians as web developers: gauging the best technologies in accessing information" was presented by Ms. Herabelle M. Villanueva, a Faculty Member of the Computer Science Department at Xavier University-Ateneo de Cagayan. She focused her session on marketing and promotion of library and its services. According to the resource speaker, libraries should adopt and utilize emerging technologies available and should focus on ways to promote information through social media like the popular platforms such as Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, YouTube, Blogger etc. This allow librarians to interact with customers through comments, liking/ sharing of stories and experiences, it is also a good platform for marketing because sharing & posting information becomes easy, build trust & familiarity and it is easy to share, create new connections and relationships.

"Librarians as social media leader: creating social media policies and management" and "The embedded librarian: fostering life-long learning through information skills and new technologies" were the topics presented and discussed by Ms. Karryl Kim A. Sagun, Teaching Assistant of Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. She talked on what is your library story; compilation of librarian blogs; her experiences and challenges in the digital age; and new roles of librarians in the society. She also mentioned LibRadio (Librarians sa Radyo), a radio program of the University of the Philippines aired at DZUP 1602 to inform its listeners about the new acquisition, announcements in the libraries, educate its listeners about libraries and librarianship and air a storytelling session. She further concluded and said that librarians are challenge as to how they perceive or use their advantage.

PAARL's National Summer Conference...

Dr. Briccio M. Merced Jr. University Librarian UP Mindanao, discussed the topic entitled "The blended librarian: asserting roles in the teaching-learning process to provide optimal learning experiences to students and researchers". According to him as what he quoted from Bell and Shanks' definition of blended librarian: combines the traditional aspects of librarianship with the technology skills of an information technologist, and someone skilled with software and hardware. Many librarians already demonstrate sound technology skills of this type and that the blended librarian adds the instructional or educational technologists' skills for curriculum design and the application of technology for student-centered learning. Blended librarian is an academic professional who offers the best combination of skills and services to help faculty and students apply technology to enhance teaching and learning.

"Library collection managers in higher grounds: weighing the odd" presented by Dr. Marianita D. Dablio, Professor of Lourdes College, Cagayan de Oro City. She started her session by quoting Ambeth R. Ocampo said "My greatest fear to my digital library is this: Technology moves to fast that my present PDF files may not be computer-readable in the future" She focused her discussion key issues confronting digital/acquisition librarians in the digital age such as: a.) Budget: How do we allocate budget to meet the changing curriculum and research needs of our institution? What budget strategies are appropriate to the multiplicity of challenges? b.) Threats to digital information such as media failure, hardware and software failures, communication errors, failure of network services, media and hardware obsolescence, natural disaster, external and internal attacks, economic failure and organizational failure. c.) Digital rights management: author's rights, open access and institutional repositories. d.) New collection metrics: standards. performance measurements, outcome-based and evidencebased. e.) Core values: access, confidentiality/privacy, democracy, diversity, education and training, intellectual freedom, professionalism, public good, service and social responsibility. She concluded with the question, Can collection managers maintain the core values as collection management practices and scholarly communication practices are undergoing radical change?

Mr. Joseph M. Yap, Instructional Media Services Coordinator of De La Salle University - Manila, discussed the topic entitled "The exchange librarian: a staff sharing program". He said that in staff exchange program one could experience working in a different environment, see how differently the job were treated in differently the job were treated in new context, use the experience and examine the...(continued on page 4) present and future career paths with the possibility of new directions being taken and learn best practices of different institutions involve and staff development via knowledge transfer and skills. He told also that currently in Philippine setting no active staff exchange program in our professional organization. As far as possible, the library staff or people working in the library in general get involve in professional activities may it be regional, national or international, participate in resource sharing, networking activities, and utilize cooperative library programs to enhance library resources and services and to reduce operating costs. He also enumerated and discussed the types of exchanges, such as: a.) professional visit, b.) professional training, and c.) professional immersion (6 months to 1 year training with minimum 5 yrs work experience). He also presented and talked the topic entitled "Librarians in digital conversations: creating effective real-time connections between researchers and resources" where he enumerated some factors and steps to consider in creating effective real-time connections between researchers and resources. such as: a.) Prepare (Good infrastructure, budget, b.) Establish policy and guidelines, c.) Personnel training or mentoring provides personal assistance from experienced librarians, d.) Competencies of a reference librarian (i.e. Responsiveness, Critical thinking & analysis, dissemination of knowledge), e.) Observe behavioral performance (visibility, approachability), f.) Market and awareness of library collection or services, and g.) Assessment/Evaluation (ROI, usersatisfaction). The topic ended by citing examples of library program that creates real time connections such as Ask a librarian (UP). LibrarvConnect (Elsevier), Ask LORA (DLSU).

"Catalogers in the Midst of Digital Development: Challenges and Opportunities" as the last topic of the conference was delivered and discussed by Ms. Annabelle P. Acedera, Library Coordinator of Lourdes College, Cagayan de Oro City. She mentioned that in the advent of advancement of new technology the 3 R's (relearn, re-skill and retool) should be implemented to each and every librarian. She enumerated also some questions that explained her topic. Those questions were the following: a.) what extent has technology usurped the need for catalogers and the catalog? b.) How do you view catalogers in today's digital environment? c.) What are the most useful new technologies (hardware and software, etc.) in cataloging and metadata today? d.) What are the challenges associated with cataloging electronic/ digital resources. She further concluded her topic by giving some questions to ponder on and these were the following: 1.) Is it possible that increasingly powerful search and browsing tools, automated indexing tools, and "intelligent agents" will obviate the need for catalogs? 2.) What sort of digital materials should be cataloged? 3.) How will digital catalogs differ from those we have today? Will these catalogs be based on existing standards such as MARC and RDA? 4.) Will digital catalogs be maintained by professional catalogers or by laypeople? What skills will be needed to create these new catalogs? How will such skills be acquired? To further conclude the conference sessions, a representative from the delegates shared their lessons learned from topic/s presented and discussed by the resource speakers. Over-all, the conference was made very beneficial on today's fast changing technologies, advancing methodologies in scholarly research and libraries were challenge on the growing diversified information needs. Kudos to PAARL!
